

TOP 5 sailing destinations

When planning a holiday, one of the most important things you have to decide is where to go. Of all the possibilities, there are 5 places any skipper would recommend. Which ones haven't you seen yet?

IBIZA (SPAIN)

It is still one of the most popular destinations, specially during summer. This Mediterranean paradise has numerous sailing routes between the island and Formentera, and you can drop anchor in the best coves.

SARDINIA (ITALY)

Although there are many different routes in the area, one of the best starts in the port of Alghero and heads towards Cape Caccia and Stintino. At Cape Caccia, you have to drop anchor near the caves and have a look at the curious Isola Foradada.

KOS (GREECE)

This Greek island in the Dodecanese archipelago is known for its paradisiacal beaches. It is easy to sail around, as it is only 40 km by 8 km.

SPLIT (CROATIA)

Located 380 kilometres from Zagreb, the capital of Croatia, and opposite the Italian coast, Split is a strategic location. It is the heart of the Dalmatian coast, in the region of Dalmatia, which has loads to see when visited aboard a sailboat.

BAY OF ISLANDS (NEW ZEALAND)

An adventure for the most experienced captains. Located in northern New Zealand, this region is considered one of the most popular marine parks in the country. It has roughly 144 independent islands, where visitors can do all sorts of water sports.
